BOOKLET LABEL

Space for information.

BOOKLET LABEL.

Nowadays, in many sectors it is necessary to communicate a large amount of information, with the purpose of explaining how to use a product or providing the information required by regulations currently in force. Often, information must be reported in several languages to optimize production costs.

However, in case of small packaging or labels, it may happen that space is not enough.

In this case, an excellent choice is the Aro Group's booklet label, which consists of a booklet with an adhesive base, whose pages are printed on the front and back and held together by glue. These booklets are laminated, for better protection and duration and are ideal in case of a long text.
