THREE-LAYER LABEL

Precision and reliability.

THREE-LAYER LABEL.

The administration of pharmaceuticals, whether it is carried out directly by the patient or in both the medical and hospital fields, requires precision and organization.
To support this need, the Aro Group has developed three-layer labels, which make it easy to keep the doses and methods of the medicine administration under control, also tracking the production batch of the medicine.

These labels are printed on three-layer material with double perforation.
The second perforation is a solution to design labels that can be applied to the basic label of the blister: these labels can be easily removed and attached to the medical record.
